FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Reach Higher Montana Welcomes Michelle Crazy as North Central Montana Outreach Advisor

Helena, MT - Reach Higher Montana, a non-profit organization dedicated to increasing college access and success for Montana students, is proud to announce the appointment of Michelle Crazy as the organization's new North Central Montana Outreach Advisor.

With over a decade of experience in higher education and student support services, Michelle brings a wealth of knowledge and passion to Reach Higher Montana's mission. Michelle has worked with a variety of student populations, including first-generation college students, low-income students, and students from rural communities. Her commitment to supporting and empowering students to reach their full potential aligns with Reach Higher Montana's values and goals.

As Outreach Advisor, Michelle will lead outreach efforts and work with partners to provide students and families with the resources and support they need to pursue higher education and achieve their goals. She will also work closely with schools and communities to increase awareness about college and career opportunities through in-person or in-classroom presentations and workshops.

"We are thrilled to welcome Michelle to the Reach Higher Montana team," said Reach Higher Montana's Executive Director, Kelly Cresswell. "Her experience and dedication to student success make her the perfect candidate to help us continue our mission of helping students strategically pursue educational opportunities."

Michelle holds a Bachelor's degree in Elementary Education from MSU-Billings and a Master's degree in Instruction and Learning from MSU-Northern, along with a current Montana teaching license. She is a proud Montana native and is excited to give back to her home state by serving the students of Montana.
